Blood Donation Camp (2013-14)

NCC Unit of the Padmashri Vikhe Patil College of Arts, Science and Commerce, Pravaranagar organized the Blood Donation Camp in collaboration with Pravara Medical Trust, Loni at 9th October 2013. In this camp Cadets of NCC Unit, Volunteers of National Service Scheme, Students, Teaching and Non-teaching staff of the college took active participation for Blood Donation. In this camp total 29 blood bags were collected from NCC cadets.

Doctors from Pravara Medical Trust, Loni told the detail information and benefits of the blood donation in the beginning of the camp. Doctor told the cadets, Blood donation is a simple, four-step process: registration, medical history and mini-physical, donation and refreshments. It is a safe process, and a sterile needle is used only once for each donor and then discarded. The actual blood donation typically takes less than 10-12 minutes. The entire process, from the time you arrive to the time you leave, takes about an hour and 15 minutes. The average adult has about 10 pints of blood in his body. Roughly one pint is given during a donation. A healthy donor may donate red blood cells every 56 days, or double red cells every 112 days. There are four types of transfusable products that can be derived from blood: red cells, platelets, plasma and cryoprecipitate. Typically, two or three of these are produced from a pint of donated whole blood — hence each donation can help save more than one life.

Do you know that the donating blood regularly (blood transfusion) proved has beneficial? Not only to recipient, but the donors also get many benefits. Donating Blood useful for their both health, including reduced cancer risk and hemochromatosis. Therefore, many people who are always do donating blood regularly for the sake of helping people, also getting benefits. Health benefits of blood donation regularly are numerous, especially if you donating blood regularly and periodically. Usually, donating blood maximum 5 times a year with a donation within three months, can be said to be routine. Donating your blood is definitely an act of goodness. Many hospitals and clinics are in constant need of the blood for different purposes. That is why it is a decent idea to donate blood that can help other people. On an average, our body has around 4-5 liters of blood which can be donated every three months in the case of men and every four months in the case of women. Most of the people are of the view that donating blood can be harmful to their body but this is not true. By giving your blood, you can save the lives of people who are in need of it.

Studies have also shown that men who donate blood on a regular basis have a lower risk of heart disease. With heart disease being the number one cause of death in males, this is, indeed, an important health benefit of donating blood. When you consider the potential health benefits of giving blood along with the joy of giving to others in need, it's no wonder the donation of blood has become so popular. An hour spent relaxing in a chair every two months is all it takes to benefit both your health and the health of a lucky recipient. Someone out there someone is waiting for your generous gift of life.

During this camp Principal Dr. S. R. Walunj told that, You don't need a special reason to give blood; you just need your own reason. Some of us give blood because we were asked by a friend. Some know that a family member or a friend might need blood some day. Some believe it is the right thing we do. The number one reason donors say they give blood is because they "want to help others." Whatever your reason, the need is constant and your contribution is important for a healthy and reliable blood supply. And you'll feel good knowing you've helped change a life. While the most obvious health benefit of donating blood is the wonderful feeling derived from giving something vital to someone who needs it, the benefits of donating blood may extend far beyond this to having a positive impact on the donor's health.
